

GROVE, WILLIS ACCLAIMED UNION PRESIDENTS

ANY OLD TOWN

New York is just like any other town—a little bigger, perhaps, but just like any other town.

But a few years ago in a Brooklyn tavern, a rabid Dodger fan overheard a stranger severely criticizing his favorite baseball team and shot him dead on the spot.

And a large department store hired Salvador Dali to design its window displays some time ago and when Dali saw the crass commercial uses to which his art was being put he heaved himself through the plate glass window.

Every day one missing person is reported to the Missing Persons' Bureau and never found, and every other day a murder is committed and never solved.

Walking down 145th St. in Harlem you can see a large red truck making deliveries, with huge yellow letters proclaiming, "Peace, Father," and smaller letters telling that the owner of the truck is "Blessed Thomas, Coal and Coke."

The mayor of this town is Fiorello H. LaGuardia, a furious, active little man with a squeak. He appointed H. F. O'Brien to the Court of Domestic Relations, and then Justice O'Brien took the stump for the anti-British, pro-fascist groups.

Queried, the Mayor answered, "I have made some pretty good appointments in my time, but when I make a mistake, it's a beauty."

When the beautiful fantasy of the World's Fair was torn down, no one said a word, but when the unbelievably ugly elevated structure on Sixth Avenue was razed, they bemoaned the passing of a landmark.

Every mild Saturday afternoon sees young artists selling their wares on the open square in Greenwich Village. They are quiet, mild folk like you and me, but on Saturdays they don smoke and berets, speak big words and look exotic, or else no one will buy.

Topsy Turvy World

New York has the highest standard of living in the world and the highest per capita crime rating, the largest buildings and the lowest slums, twelve or thirteen colleges and universities and universal ignorance.

Up around Columbia University and the Juilliard School of Music are huge apartment houses whence come the sounds of clarinets, trumpets, violins and flutes practising, and several pianos playing dissonances as young composers seek new modes of expressing the same old stuff.

A musical called Crazy with the Heat opened a while ago, and closed fast. Then the producers broadcast that they were remaking the whole show, new lines, new scenes, new artists. Three weeks later the same Crazy with the Heat reopened, without a significant change. The show is a huge success.

People go to the motion pictures to complete their dinner-set, get books, pay the rent, and on the one chance in a thousand of winning at bingo. They sit home one evening a week waiting for a call from the Pot o' Gold.

You can get a good seat for a Town Hall recital by paying $3.30. You can get a better one by buying

Forge in New Form Appears Next Week

The editor of the Forge, Katherine Aikins, has announced that the 1940 issue of the Forge will appear for sale directly after the long weekend. The magazine went to press Friday, February 14.

The Forge has been completely revised as to cover, colour, and actual layout, the editor stated. The contributions which have been selected and printed deal with widely divergent subjects, ranging from a story of French-Canadian life to a study in child psychology. Included in the magazine are nine pieces of prose and six poems. In addition, six linocuts have been printed to illustrate the Forge and provide variety. The editorial board anticipates a large circulation of the magazine in its new form.

LAMONT SPEAKS ON 'HAPPINESS' AT ARTS DINNER

States We Should Be Happier Than Our Fathers

OTHER GUESTS PRESENT

Bill Stevens and Florence Provide Music at Banquet

The Arts and Science annual banquet was held last night in the McGill Union. Among those present were T. H. Matthews, Registrar, who replied to a toast to the Alma Mater proposed by Melvin Malen; Dr. C. Leonard Huskins who proposed a toast to the Graduating Class, which was answered by Alex Stalker; and the guest speaker, Rev. Thomas Lamont who was introduced by Mr. Philip Vineberg. In addition, Major Field addressed the banquet in an unofficial capacity.

Mr. Matthews in his reply to the toast quoted from William Dawson's report on McGill, contrasting the condition of the University then and now. Professor Huskins stressed the need of acquiring a true education and not merely "stuffing" oneself with facts. Alex Stalker, addressing the group, assured his listeners that the Class of '41 would do its share of the work to be done, and do it well.

Lamont on Happiness

The theme of Rev. Lamont's address was "Happiness." In the preface to his address he told several humorous stories and expressed his gratitude to the Committee for having chosen him as their guest speaker. The subject of his lecture, he stated, was inspired by the title of the book "Looking Back on Happiness" and the well known epigram "Is everybody happy?"

Rev. Lamont contrasted our generation with that of our fathers and asked "Are we as happy as our fathers were?" Furthermore, because our life is more free from physical pain, and because our modern life provides more entertainment we have ample justification. Happiness he continued is, unlike duration of life or temperance, intangible, and is a state of the soul.

College Paper Quoted

Hethen quoted several definitions of "life" he had read in an American College Newspaper: "life is a disease whose only cure is death"; further, "Life is the jail sentence for the crime of being born"; again, "Life is a bad joke and not even a funny one at that." These he stated do not indicate youth's revolt against religion, rather its revolt against the revolt against religion. Rev. Lamont then concluded with the quotation from Browning "Life means intensely and life means well." He told the fable of the oriental ruler who was unhappy, the moral of the story being that comfort in itself does not spell happiness. In conclusion he paraphrased the theme of the book "The Blue Flower" by Van Dyne telling of how the unhappy man searched all day for the blue flower of happiness only to find at the end of his search that it was at his doorstep.

By way of musical entertainment Miss Florence Jenkins of the M.R.T. Tin Hats sang popular songs and accompanied herself at the piano, while Bill Stevens, student in Music, played several classical selections on the piano.

Daily Editors
There will be a meeting of all Editors on the masthead on Thursday at 5 p.m. in the Daily Office. It is imperative that everyone attend and bring a tentative list of reporters who can attend the banquet and of those deserving of promotions and awards.

Political Philosophy

The Philosophical Society will assemble this evening at 8:30 to hear an address by Lloyd Henderson on "The New Idealism." The meeting will take place in Strathcona Hall.

Henderson stated that he will discuss the present state of world affairs and the ideals that the democratic world should have in mind when building a future. The address, he said, will be in the sphere of social and political philosophy, and indicate a positive and practical policy other than "muddling through."

It will give a description not only of things as they are and ought to be, but also of the way in which the problem should be attacked.

Following the address, there will be an informal discussion and refreshments will be served.

CLUB DISCUSSES WAR FINANCES

Political Economy Club Fifth Meeting Tonight

Letiche, Hollinger Discuss Internal and External Monetary Problems

"The internal aspects of War Finance" will be the theme which Martin Hollinger will develop at the meeting of the McGill Political Economy Club to be held this evening at 8:00 p.m. in the grill Room of the Union. Jack Letiche will speak on the external problems with respect to Canada's Foreign Exchange Board, dealing with allied financial and monetary aspects.

Martin Hollinger is an honour student in Economics, and is in the graduation year. He expects to continue on with the studies which are the subject of his talk. Jack Letiche is a graduate student in the Department of Economics and Political Science. He is working along the lines of a study of comparative Exchange Control with Canada and Germany as the subjects for his research.

Theologs to Play Newspapermen At Special Issue Next Friday

Difficult to Judge Which of Special Issues is Best, But More and Better Ones Expected Next Year

Many and varied have been the special issues of the "Daily" published during the past few weeks by amateur newspapermen and newspaperwomen. From the point of view of one who has assisted in the publication of all of them in a technical capacity only, it is difficult to say which is the best, or the worst.

General campus opinion at the moment appears to lean to the opinion that the Law issue was the best, but the lawyers got everybody excited and then left them hanging in the air. Who can tell but that the forthcoming Theology issue, which will make its appearance next Friday, will include something really novel—for a change.

This year is the first in which there are so many special issues. These special issues are the result of a challenge from the Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily, in which he said that any faculty which thought it could put out just as good, or even a better "Daily" than the regular staff, was welcome to come down and try.

Although nearly all the Faculties have accepted the challenge when the long empty spaces on the pages have finally been filled, at approximately 1:30 a.m., reporters and editors alike all agree that they would never be able to put out a special issue every night without placing themselves on the hospital list. It's

CO-EDS DEBATE RESOLUTION ON MERCY KILLING

Dangers of Legalized Euthanasia Put Forward

SYLVIA GROVE WINS

Says People Not Qualified to Decide Who Should Die

Yesterday afternoon in the Common Room of R.V.C., Sylvia Grove lead the co-ed debaters assembled to argue "that mercy killings licensed by medical advisors should be legalized." Judges for the debate were Professor McLennan, Mr. Forsey, and Lloyd Henderson. Marion Dryer, Ivy Lawrence, Jean Mitchell, Sylvia Grove and Marion Savage took part in the argument.

Debating on the negative side, Sylvia Grove, the winner, contended that the chief argument of the affirmative side which had preceded her had been one of sentimentality only. She asked whether we humans who are ourselves in the grip of life and death are qualified to decide on the issue of life and death. The patient concerned, she mentioned, is unfit to decide the issue, being himself in a serious state of profound depression; decisions of friends and relatives may possibly be based upon selfishness; while the doctors, as a group, have already stated themselves to be averse to mercy-killing.

Already Legalized

Marion Dryer, speaking on the affirmative side, stated that in the State of Texas, mercy killings are already legalized. The question, she said, would merely involve the legalization of an already existing custom.

Also speaking on the affirmative, Ruth Hill quoted the writings of Bacon and Alexis Carroll to corroborate her argument. The speaker pointed out that if people were

Pick Up The Step

Some months have passed since the first brisk injunction, "Pick it up! Pick it up!" rang out across the Gym floor. In those few months the sound of military footsteps echoing through the halls of McGill has lost its novelty; war, and war-time atmosphere, has become a commonplace.

The university carries on. It does indeed, in the leisurely manner of former years, military training serving as the only reminder that the Empire is at war. To some it is an unpleasant reminder—McGill is not secure in its bright, scholarly, tight little world. Others take their training with three cheers and a cynical grin.

The Empire has been at war for over a year. For over a year McGill has been asking all sorts of questions: What's going to happen to intercollegiate sports? Why hold the prom in the Gym on account of the war? Will the war curtail freedom of speech at McGill? Are studies more important than training? In short, what's the war going to do to McGill?

Does anyone ask, "What's McGill doing about the war?"

To this question, when asked, there comes a feeble answer. "Think of all the staff members and grads on war service; all those Official Secrets were working on; and EVERYBODY's in training, even the co-eds."

Then there's the argument that the university is being patriotic to the utmost by simply managing to exist while the war goes merrily on. Meanwhile, three thousand students prepare for life in a brave new world to come.

Strangely enough, the world must be built before it can be lived in, and on that job McGill is playing the part of the critical spectator.

The only real, tangible, immediately helpful part being played by the undergraduate body is being done by the co-eds. They're knitting socks for the soldiers. The lamp of knowledge burns to keep the feet of the army warm.

Three thousand students at McGill can do more than prepare for a brave new world. The inhabitants of London need blankets and clothes; the government needs money in the form of War Savings; the R.A.F. needs Spitfires for its defence of England. Three thousand students at McGill ought to be able to help supply some of these needs.

McGill is lagging out of step.

Again the command rings out, "Pick it up! Pick it up!" Three thousand students should provide less discussion of the value of democracy, and more action to preserve it.

No man is an island, intire of it self: Every man is a peece of the continent, a part of the maine; if a clod bee washed away by the sea, Europe is the lessee as well as if a promontorie were, as well as if a manner of thy friends or of thine owne were; any mans death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee.

Air Force Letter

This letter from Malcolm N. Davies, last year's editor of the Daily, was received here on the week-end. Mac, as he is affectionately known, joined the R.C.A.F. in early autumn after a brilliant academic career at Old McGill, graduating with Honours in Classics.—Ed.

No. 1 Initial Training School,
 Royal Canadian Air Force,
 Toronto, Ontario.

Dear Jack,

As you've heard me say before, editors, which includes ex-editors, should be seen and not heard; but you have yourself to blame this time, you asked for it so here it is.

It seems a far call now that that night at the end of October when you and other Daily men and women gathered to wish Kerle Palin and me good luck on our Air Force voyage. First came a short period at the Manning Pool in Toronto, which transformed me from a civilian to an airman... in easy stages, if you like! Then I was posted to the Trenton station on security guard duty, for every aircrew member has to go through that mill. The time passed quite quickly, however, and we were all able to glean bits of useful information about our service. After all, living, eating, and sleeping to the drone of aircraft, we could not help but be impressed by the organization which we had joined and looked forward eagerly to the day when we would be upstairs and not in the "flying infantry" as we called ourselves.

Late last month came our posting to this school which serves as an airman's freshman year, if one may compare the Commonwealth Training Scheme to a university. This is one of the Air Force's ground schools and through them must pass all aircrews before they can be posted to flying schools. The training is elementary, but at the same time both intense and interesting. At present I am studying subjects that I never dreamed of this time last year, and which are as far removed from my classics as bacteriology is from spelling! It might interest you to know that since the opening of this I.T.S. many months ago, men from every university in Canada, and from some two score American colleges have passed through it, including four Rhodes Scholars.

I'd like to train, subsequent to this, as an air observer, but that is still in the hands of the powers that be; some time must pass and a good many exams taken in stride before the postings are published. So much for me.

Don't forget to contact some of the other lads in the Air Force—Walt Conrad, who should be finished his elementary flying by now; Kerle Palin, who got the jump on me and must have a few flying hours at Malton; Shan Dunn, who wandered westward to some neck of the woods—oh, there are plenty—not to mention Daily men in the Army and Navy.

Of course I look forward eagerly each day to receiving my Daily, both as a reliable mirror of Old McGill's ups and downs, and as something of which I was once a part. Much to my amazement, I still find myself, instead of reading the news and being satisfied with what it pleases the Daily to print, wanting to pull the old rag apart—as I always did and will probably always want to!

Now the day is coming to an end; I find parades, drill, and lectures considerably more tiring than last year's schedule, so that "lights out" at the ridiculously early hour of 10:45 p.m. is more than welcome as a rule. I hope that I have fulfilled your request, and will certainly keep you posted as things begin to move more quickly.

Regards to all my friends on the campus,

And best of luck to you,

Sincerely,

MAC.

As Others See Us.

Comes mid-term and a wave of boredom sweeps across the country from Atlantic to Pacific with college newspapers outdoing each other in securing staffs from various societies, faculties, etc. The McGill Daily leads the Canadian papers with a special issue approximately every other day put out by some society or other. The players guild, the commerce men and the co-eds have each taken a shot at journalism.

The Silhouette from McMaster and Manitoba are throwing an edition at the co-eds soon. Not to be outdone the Queens Journal appears with a special science edition (engineers to you). Outstanding in the engineers effort were some humorous jokes that will shortly be appearing all across the country (see your local paper for time and station). A parody on a certain well known C.U.P. columnist entitled Pie Eyed An Got 'Em by Raving Funk topped them all.

The discontented journalists not only are getting other people to do their work, they are doing other people's to relieve the monotony. Even Larry Smith of Varsity and President of C.U.P. has taken a shot at Hither and Yon in his paper. Some O'Mara guy writes it once a month when nobody else will do it for him.

Sadie Takes A Hatchet.

Special editions bring to mind cuts of various Sadie Hawkins activities that appeared with St. Valentine's or thereabouts. Eastern girls are undoubtedly the most pugnacious, and we mean pugnacious when it comes to getting their men. Witness a picture of girls at Mount Allison chasing their loves with fixed bayonets on service rifles. At Acadia a good replica of a scalping party was in progress when the Athenaeum cameraman appeared on the scene. In any event the timid male was giving in to the gentle caressing of a hatchet. NICE GIRLS!!

Thespians.

Drama is at its height across Canada. In the West it is Gilbert and Sullivan. In the East it is high comedy (in some cases we do mean high). At Dalhousie it is Philip Barry's Spring Dance; Good Morning, Bill, by P. G. Wodehouse went well at McGill; while Charley's Aunt was staged at Queens.

Let's Go War Effortful.

War effortful goes on all over the place. War Savings campaigns are being carried out on most campuses. The I.S.S. is making a nation-wide appeal for funds and this has met with good response nearly everywhere. At U.N.B. they are selling a flag pole bit by bit and making a nice thing out of it for war work.

Disaster Strikes.

Canada's college journals have now two of their number piloted by women. The Brunswickian recently passed into the hands of the fair sex while the Dal Gazette was taken over by female co-editors at the beginning of the new year. Wars and rumors of wars are certainly making imprints on our journals.

Pollyanna Stuff.

We hate to think of anyone of being just slightly childish, but the other day a full page display of DOLLS in the Gateway from Alberta had us stopped. Was it a co-ed war effort, a class in child psychology or something? Apparently it was just an exhibit of dolls, with full wardrobes and everything (Gee we were touched), that were being given public showing to swell war funds.

Also from the Gateway comes the most morbid thought of the year—at the top of the front

What Again?

"L'Affaire de Bert Yales" at McGill is growing into quite an affair at the university if the reports emanating from Montreal are true. It seems that Bert was fired from his job in the McGill Union because he was inefficient. Union President McDonald said so and union presidents should know. However, the deep sympathy that the students have for the permanent staff of institutions of learning asserted itself and a demand became clear for Bert's reinstatement.

We have a feeling that McGill does not know the full significance of this. What if an alumnus just rolling in what it takes comes back and finds that Bert had been shoved out into the cold world by a bunch of young whippersnappers? Bequests to the college would fail, debts rise and then fees would go up and where would the students be? McGill Unionists or whatever they call themselves don't know what they are in for. Let's all pull for Bert because he's been there 14 years, and anyone that can stay in these madhouses that we call universities that long and do any work at all must be a great guy.

HAY FEVER

Summer is the time when most people think it is good to be alive; it is the season of the year when the world is at its best. But to many it is a time of misery. The hay fever sufferer is entitled to a lot of sympathy but he usually gets very little. There is something about hay fever which seems to stimulate people to make funny remarks rather than to offer sympathy, yet actually it is a condition which seriously interferes with efficiency and literally makes life a burden to the afflicted person.

The cause of hay fever is the pollen of a plant which is light enough to remain in suspension in the air for a considerable time. Many plants which might be capable of producing hay fever are eliminated because their pollen is not carried by the air. The offending agent, however, is only one aspect of the picture. The other is the susceptible individual. It is fortunate that only a small proportion of people are susceptible to these pollens. Why this should be so is unknown, but the fact is that most of us can go with impunity into an atmosphere loaded with pollen while a few are immediately seized with the characteristic symptoms of hay fever.

There are two common types of hay fever, the spring type and the fall type. The latter is much the more common. The spring type is usually caused by grasses which mature and pollinate early. Timothy is one of the commonest offenders. The fall type is most commonly due to the rag weed which matures with remarkable regularity about the middle of August and continues to disseminate its pollen until the first frost.

It would seem impracticable to eliminate the June grasses, for many of them are staple foods of cattle, but the rag weed serves no known useful purpose and its elimination would believe would harm neither man nor beast. Its widespread distribution makes its eradication very difficult, however. One finds it by sidewalks, in vacant lots, along railway embankments, in fact in every spot which is not under cultivation. Its pollen can be wafted for several miles so that its eradication from a city might not prove satisfactory if the neighbouring territory were contaminated. It seems probable, however, that a serious attempt will soon be made, in cities at least, to limit the spread of the weed for a substantial reduction in the number of plants should reduce the amount of pollen in the air and give a corresponding relief to hay fever sufferers.

The victim of hay fever is chiefly interested in what he can do for himself. If he has the means he can remove himself to a pollen free area. A sea voyage can generally be depended upon to give relief. If this is impossible his chief hope lies in submitting to a treatment directed towards increasing his resistance to the offending pollen. This usually means a test to determine which pollen is responsible for the trouble and then a series of injections. Sometimes this treatment is completely successful, more often it is partially successful with relief of symptoms to a degree. The individual should visit a physician several months in advance of the hay fever season so that the treatment may be practically complete before the season starts.

Another measure which may give relief is the equipping of a bedroom or office with some filtering device which will remove the pollen. This will give relief so long as the individual remains in the filtered air. A visit to an air-conditioned theatre often gives temporary relief. Drugs should be used only on the advice of a physician.

C Coy. Firsts Down A Coy. Seconds at Forum

Artsmen Lose 9-4—Young, Read and Ward Star

The highly touted A seconds were crushed by a score of 9 to 4 at the Forum yesterday in spite of campus opinion, which favoured them over the victors of C company's first string team. Although the Artsmen put up a good showing, they were unable to break the defensive duo of Ward and Read, who played masterful hockey. In addition to this, the forward line, with Young as its mainstay, took more stopping than the seconds were able to give.

WARD GETS PENALTY

The first period ended 4-0, with Ward, Cowan, Hall and Read tallying for the firsts. During the second period the C firsts were not quite so lucky and they trailed the period 3-2. The points for the seconds were scored by Smith who gained two goals, with one assist from Madill, and Madill finished the period with an assist from King. Graves and Hall scored for C, with assist from Young and Read respectively. Ward spent two minutes in the box watching his pals take all the honours this being the only penalty of the game, which was remarkable for its good sportsmanship, despite the hard fighting of the Artsmen.

The third and final period ended with Taylor getting the sole goal for the losers, on an assist from Morris. Hampton scored twice, with assists from Young and Ward. Read shot the final with Young again lending his aid.

FEW SPECTATORS

It was a swell game even though the play was hindered by slow ice. A few loyal supporters turned out to cheer for their favourites, but on the whole the forum looked rather deserted.

The lineup was as follows:

C firsts	A seconds
Morris	goaler Shecter
Ward	defence Madill
Read	" Skutesky
Hampton	forward Taylor
Hall	" Gibsone
Young	" Reilley
Graves	alternates Morris
McMillan	" Russell
Cowan	" King
	" Morgan
	" Smith

The referee was Earl Smith.

C COMPANY CAGERS CARRY CLOSE GAME

The Intercompany Basketball league saw C Coy. win a hard-fought game over F Coy. by a score of 20-19. The play throughout the game was fast and both teams found it difficult to take the lead over the other. Pearman and Hardwick of the winners led the scoring list by gaining 9 and 6 pts. respectively for their team, while on the F Company outfit the individual scoring was also high. A. Neish and West garnering eight and seven points respectively.

FEW MEN FOR F.

Towards the end of the basket battle, C Company forged into the lead, and when the final whistle had sounded were on the long end of a 20-19 score. F Company was handicapped by the fact that only five men turned out to uphold the honor of the Company, while double that number turned out to sport the C's colors. The line-ups were as follows:

C COMPANY.

Leviton, Beardmare, Stacey, Brennan, Hampton, MacDonald, Powles, Hardwick, Brady, Pearman.

F COMPANY.

A. P. Stuart, West, Campbell, Duncan, A. Neish.

Referee: Ross Culley.

Wicksteed Gymnasts Will Vie On Mats, Horse, Box and Bars

Gymnastic teams from the various companies in the M.R.T.B. are being organized for the coming Inter-Company and Wicksteed Gymnastic Meets. Captains have been appointed from each company to line up their team. Those appointed are Ernest Skutesky — A Company; Bill Weber — B Company; John Simpson — C Company; John Foster — D Company; Art Henderson — E Company; and Stan Dembicki — F Company. Independents wishing to participate in the meet should hand in their names and phone numbers at the Athletic Office.

The following events will be conducted: Vaulting Box, Flying Rings, Mats, Side Horse, Horizontal Bar, and Parallel Bars. Each competitor may enter as many events as he desires and will be awarded one point for each event. Besides this, the winner, second, third, fourth, and fifth-place men will receive respectively five, four, three, two, and one points.

The more men entered by each company the more it is to that company's advantage. Consequently, no matter how poor a gymnast a person is, he is sure of being an asset to his company by entering the meet. A large and enthusiastic turnout is expected.

Individual Merit Competition Will Be Held After Recess

The Inter-Company Badminton Competition came to an end last night with Macdonald College in the lead with a total of 83 points. D Company was a close runner-up with 72 points, while the rest of the companies lagged far behind. The Macs were well deserving of their victory since they had a full turnout at all their matches. D Company, composed of freshmen, made a fine showing by defeating all the upperclass companies.

After the recess men's singles will be held, for individual merit rather than for intercompany rating. A mixed doubles competition is also being considered.

Dartmouth Team to Battle Redmen in Return Engagement

Saturday and Sunday Set for Two Downhills and a Slalom Run

This week-end will see the return match, Canadian side, of the Dartmouth Carnival, when the skiers from the south cross the border and assemble at Mount Tremblant. The meet is to be held over Saturday and Sunday, and the Dartmouth boys will be led by Coach Walter Prager, with McLean and Little in the van.

The Dartmouth aggregate is as strong as they were at their own meet, if not more so, where they beat the Redmen to gain a second place. McGill was right behind them. This time, the Reds are on their home grounds, and they may be able to down the Yanks.

The home aggregate boasts of its stars of the Dartmouth Carnival, Townsend, Scott, Tirrell, Stanforth, Bruno, Davies, Mann, and Hanbrock. Although weather has not been particularly favourable, they have practised steadily and are

The President of the Students' Society fills a key position in the University. He presides over meetings of the Students' Executive Council, which controls all undergraduate activities on the campus, and is a member of the Students' Athletic Board. He is the official representative of McGill students and the intermediary between the student body and the University.

Sleeping Accommodations

The President of the Union sup-

ervises over that building, organizes all activities connected with it, and controls the expenditure of that portion of the universal fee that is allotted for the running of it. He is also a member of the Students' Executive Council. These two men and the Secretary of the Union have living accommodations in the Union, but the Vice-President has not.

Besides being a member of the Executive Council, the President of the Women's Union superintends all women's organization on the campus and represents the women students on the campus and in outside organizations.

In order to assist students in choosing their candidates, a list of platforms of the various candidates will probably be published in the "Daily" in the near future.

WAR SAVINGS PLEDGE CARDS ARE AVAILABLE

War Savings Stamps and pledge cards, have, during the past week been distributed over the whole campus. Stamps are now available in Douglas Hall, R.V.C., and the Arts, Engineering, Medical, and Biological buildings.

Committees have been appointed by the War Savings Committee in each building in the University for the purpose of distributing Pledge Cards amongst the students.

The signer of a pledge card undertakes to buy one or more stamps at twenty-five cents a stamp at any date specified by himself on the card. He may wish to buy one or more stamps once a week, perhaps oftener. At any rate he is to signify how often he intends to make his purchases, and in what amounts.

Students are asked to remember that systematic saving works far better than spasmodic and unorganized saving. By pledging themselves to buy regularly students, emphasize the committee, will be making it a habit instead of just an incidental task. When sixteen stamps have been bought, the purchaser is entitled to a five dollar certificate.

All students are urged to secure their pledge cards immediately and start serving by saving.

VOCATION GUIDANCE IS DISCUSSION TOPIC

Dr. Webster, who, together with a number of McGill Psychology Professors is doing psychological work in connection with the war effort, will give a talk on Vocational Guidance today in Strathcona Hall.

The general subject of Vocational Guidance involves a discussion of the basic principles used in the determination of a person's aptitudes and interests in work of a particular kind.
